Director of Central Intelligence
CIA

Dear Bill:

I'm writing to ask your personal consideration for a young man who is interested in entering the Agency.

His name is [redacted] He is 24 years old and recently completed a four year tour of duty as an enlisted man in Air Force intelligence. He is a graduate of the Army Language School at Monterey and is fluent in written and spoken Russian.

[redacted] is a big, rugged, outgoing, athletic guy with hands-on experience in AF intelligence work, monitoring Russian broadcasts (I presume - like a good spook, he won't say.) I think he is good raw material for the Agency. He attended college briefly but does not have a degree.

STAT

If at all possible, would you pass this on to your recruiting people with the request that they contact [redacted] for a job interview?

I would really appreciate it.

The election outcome was most gratifying, although I suffered through both debates - I had about a dozen better answers than the Chief had, but it's a lot easier to think of them here in my living room than on the stage facing Mondale. I am doing some speechwriting for a couple of people - [redacted] and otherwise wondering what I will do with the rest of my life. You want to drop me behind the lines in Albania? I could use a little excitement. Nah, just kidding....at least for now.
